

"Using Digital Technology in distance learning for English Language Teaching"

Carlos Mejía

Joe León

Carlos Murillo

4th of September - 2:00 PM

During this talk, we will approach the relevant topic of using digital technology in distance learning for English language teaching from three main perspectives: planning classes, implementing digital resources with our students and the use of online platforms.

Register here

Carlos Mejía was born in Honduras and has an undergraduate degree from Universidad Catolica de Honduras and a graduate degree from Rochester Institute of Technology & University of Adelaide. Carlos also is a State Department IVLP alumnus from The American Language: Connecting English Teachers with US History and Culture Program and from American English AE-E Teacher Program. Carlos has also taken many certify course programs from University of Michigan, Indian Institute of Management Bangalore, Stanford University and Oxford University Department of Continuing Education and OUP / OTA. He has experience teaching English to teenagers and adults from different ages. Carlos is the Academic Director of English Programs at the binational center IHCI in Honduras and teaches adult and advanced English programs. He is passionate about ESF / EFL teaching, mentoring youth and promoting professional and personal opportunities to the Honduran population.

English teacher for over 13 years. Joe León graduated from "Universidad Nacional Mayor de San Marcos" in Perú. Specialist in teaching techniques for EFL, complemented with studies of linguistics. Speaker, researcher, and current ONLINE PLATFORMS SPECIALIST for OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS, training teachers who use the technology components offered by OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS as part of their publications.

Carlos Murillo was born in Costa Rica and has a teaching degree from Universidad de Costa Rica and is soon to graduate from the M.A. TESOL at the University of Nottingham from the United Kingdom. Carlos has experience teaching English to teenagers and adults from different ages. Carlos is currently a consultant for Oxford University Press and has recently started teaching a module on Didactics for Teaching in the Faculty of Education at Universidad de Costa Rica. He is passionate about Second Language Motivation, EAP, DMCs, Methods for Teaching English, Blended Learning, Flipped Classroom, Implementing technological tools in Online and Classroom-Based Classes.